Thought for the day – Monday 24th October 2022

By Val Ohen

Angel

A few weeks ago, I had finished my day at St Thomas eye department, but they decided that they were going to do my cataract in my right eye which they had not been able to do, because of the fact that they are dealing with the glaucoma in the left eye.

So, I had the pre assessment the same day. So instead of going home at that point and coming back I was supposed to go to a department within the eye department, to get all measured up for the op.

There were about 5 or 6 people waiting, and I was having trouble with the leg and I was given water tablets, to get the water out of the system. I was needing to go to the toilet, and I thought to myself, I could just make use of the toilet there, before they call my name, but it was at the end of the day, I just felt if they had come out and called me, and not see me there, they might think I got fed up and went home!

So, I closed my eyes and prayed, “Lord I need your help! I really need your help; I am not sure what to do! I don’t want to disgrace myself in the hospital.”

So, when I opened my eyes, there was this technician walking by, and I asked, “please can you help?” She was a really nice lady and she asked “what’s wrong my love?” And I told her all about the problem. She said she would go and check, and when she came back, she said that she can probably take me to the toilet and back before they call my name.

So, I was able to do that, and I came back from the toilet and sat back in the que. All of a sudden, she said to me, “you know what, I could do this before I go.”

So, she did all that was needed, and wheeled me all the way back, because I was in one of those wheelchairs in the hospital, to the doctor, and gave the doctor all the information they needed, for the op.

I said to her, “is your name Angela?” She said “No, but I will be your Angela if you want me to be!”

I told her, my daughter’s name is Angela, and thought it was an appropriate name for her because she is an angel.

And I thought she was definitely an angel sent by God, as I was in such a desperate situation, and really did not know what to do, I was just about to cry and give up, and when she arrived, she saved me day...I think there are angels right here.

BIBLE VERSE:

Are not all angels ministering spirits sent to serve those who will inherit salvation? – Hebrews 1:14
