

Thought for the day – Tuesday 2nd May 2023

By Revd John Marshall

Psalms for the city A pea in Kew

A Pea, in Kew

Planet Earth

is a pea

on the platform of Kew

The moon

is a crumb

on a staircase in Richmond

Saturn

is a cup and saucer

in a café in Hackney

The Sun

is a pumpkin

on the Wrekin

And the nearest star

is a car

in Pennsylvania

I like this, I am not sure why, but it may be a way of working out our place in the scheme of things.

We do like wandering at night in Tollesbury, where there are few street lights and you can see the stars so clearly.
