God's provision --- jam and flour etc

Many years ago, when I was living in Heaton Moor and travelling into Manchester I would pass the McVities factory on the 92 or 94 buses. They were nice and red and became orange as SELNEC took over (sorry I digress.)

I loved the jam tankers --- Quantock jam --- I assume they were for jammy dodgers. The flour tankers were impressive too.

I was reminded of this by seeing a delivery to a bakery in Streatham this morning.

I like biscuits (perhaps too well) but it is good to remember the work and energy, the good provision of food, farmers; rain and sunshine which we believe comes ultimately from God.

The Israelites were delighted to receive Manna in the wilderness --- but then might have got bored as they remembered life in Egypt.

Let us give thanks for all God's provision. And let us remember to help others.
