I found this article in a Big Issue at the back of Church. I thought it was inspiring.

“I’d like to tell my customers to trust in themselves and, more than that, trust in God. We are very blessed and we have to say thanks for everything and the blessings that we have.

We have to say thank you to God more than feeling sorry for ourselves perhaps. Just count the blessings that we have. We have good things, it’s not all bad. My faith is very important to me and I go to church twice a week on Thursday and Sunday.

I couldn’t do any of this without God, with the kids and everything. I have faith in him and I know that he helps all the time and I can always talk to him.it’s definitely a big thing for me. I have had times when I was really struggling and prayed to God and then somehow a miracle happened and the problem was solved.”

Ana’s ambition is to train as a midwife.

What story could we tell?
